SUNDAY CHAT.

COLONEL PAT DORAN MAKES

A FEW OBSERVATIONS.

THE POLICE HAVE NEW UNIFORMS

And a Boy Wants to Know Where

They Got Them--About Fishing in

Southwest Virginia--And Johnson

Poetizes on the Beautiful Spring.

Colonel Pat Doran passed through Roanoke during the week, on his way South where he will visit the place of his birth in Mississippi. The prophet of Devil's Lake is just as genial as ever and quite as enthusiastic in his prognostications about the grand future that lies before this section. Since he failed to be elected a senator from Dakota he has not much to say about politics as a profession.

"Politics? Oh, d--n politics!" he said emphatically. "Mr. Harrison's administration is about the dearest failure in American history. He could have been elected constable in Indianapolis today. Civil service reform is an almost busted humbug. Nobody can tell who will be the next presidential candidate, or what the issue will be. Both parties are split up on the tariff. Capital and labor are squabbling. Monopolists and anti-monopolists are going to lock horns. The next House of Representatives will be overwhelmingly Democratic. And that's about all I know tonight--and I'm not sure I know that."

Time was, and not very long ago either, when the mountain streams of Southwest Virginia were not considered bad by sporting men. They could spend a week or more with the rod very profitably, but few try it now. Progress seems to lead a death blow to that kind of sport. The mines along the streams are running the time and mud is fatal to bass, trout and every other kind of game fish. But the Southern clubber thrives and grows fat on it. Who cares to catch a chubb, though. Might as well hang an old piece of drift wood.

Spring fever is epidemic. The air is sweet and light off as you try a feeling of languor steals over one in spite of oneself. This is how "Phil" Johnson put it and he ought to know: "The sun that seeks the West's gleams Hot and seems Sort o' dim and hazy-er And now a fellow jests Down an' gits Lazier an' lazier."

A LYNCHBURG COMPANY.

The Rivermont Land Company is a strong one.

One of the most substantial corporations of Lynchburg is the Rivermont Land Company. The men at the head of it are all thorough business men and are going into this with a win.

The property of the company contains about 5,000 acres of land lying contiguous to the city and company, which are within the city limits. This embraces the triangle between the Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio railroads, and is only separated from the city proper by a small ravine which can be easily bridged. This is the intention of the company, and they will very soon erect one of more handsome bridges. The first one will be sixty feet wide, of iron, and put up in the best style and of the best material. This place is within less than five squares of the main business portion of the city.

Among the enterprises that will probably be established there will be a manufactory of all kinds of cars; a furnace to manufacture Bessemer pig iron; a belt line running three miles through the Company's lands and connecting the Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western, Richmond and Danville, and Lynchburg and Durham systems, and other railways centering at Lynchburg; a complete system of electric street railway, including a line from the Union Depot, connecting with the line which will be the new bridge in the Company's lands; water works; a handsome modern hotel and other large enterprises, as utility suggests. The property will be laid off into streets, drives and sites for residences, business and manufacturing purposes, which will be placed upon the market as speedily as the scope of so large an enterprise will admit of.

Lynchburg's environments and rapid growth have made "The Rivermont Company" a necessity. It will afford new homes to its overcrowded population and singularly attractive sights for its rapidly expanding industries.

The Company starts out under favorable auspices and will, no doubt, be a big thing for Lynchburg. Roanoke will probably be allotted a block of stock so look out and don't get left.

ABOUT THE HOTELS.

Hinton Helper, the well-known correspondent, who has been traveling in the north in the interest of Roanoke, stepped off the sleeping car of the morning train yesterday, and will spend several days in the city. He was looking bronzed, somewhat, from his trip, and has travelled over the greater part of three States since last he was here. He visited various cities in New York, Delaware and Pennsylvania, and presented the advantages of Roanoke in sections that have never been advertised before. He carried thousands of neat little circulars with him, printed on yellow paper and chock full of statistics, and succeeded in obtaining a great deal of interest wherever he went. When he returns he will bring down three or four excursion parties with him from Delaware and Pennsylvania.

Arthur Henry, staff correspondent of Frank Leslie's, has been in the city for the past few days gathering news for the past issue of the paper. He is now in the city gathering news for the past issue of the paper. He is now in the city gathering news for the past issue of the paper.

Read the Inducements Offered to Those Seeking Homes.

The real estate market has been very active in Roanoke during the week. Owners agents and purchasers were all in a good humor, and everybody is satisfied.

The market during the week has shown largely increased sales in every department, and James S. Simmons & Co. report a number of large sales. Not only is this increase of sales very noticeable in the transfers of property for speculative purposes, but also for permanent investors, men who propose to build homes for themselves and their families.

Among the prominent additions in the East End, is that of the Oak Ridge Land Company. The addition lies just east of Belmont and south of the East Side Land Company's property and adjoins the farms of Messrs. George Taylor and G. W. Carr.

This offers every inducement as a place of residence. It is removed from the business portion of the city, and is a quiet, suburban home, while at the same time it is near the dummy line and therefore quite convenient to the city.

The land is high and dry and has just enough slope to give it a beautiful view of the city and harbor. The land is high and dry and has just enough slope to give it a beautiful view of the city and harbor.

James S. Simmons & Co. are agents for the company, and they can give good bargains. The property is going rapidly, and if you want to obtain a good bargain, call on them at once. The prices for the lots are low and the terms easy, so every man can own his home.

PRESS PEOPLE.

COMING TO THE SOUTHWEST

ON THEIR EXCURSION.

TWO STOPS IN THIS CITY.

It Will be a Large and Talented Crowd They Will be Banqueted in Norfolk

And All Along the Line--A Visit to Pulaski and Ivanhoe--Unveiling.

A telegram received by the TIMES last night, from Boston, announced that the suburban Press Association had sailed for Norfolk on their trip through Southwest Virginia.

They will arrive in Norfolk tomorrow at noon and will be entertained by the Business Men's Association. At 10 o'clock they will leave for Roanoke, where they will arrive at 12-16, and for three hours will be entertained by the citizens.

From Pulaski the party will go to Ivanhoe Furnace, staying there about four hours, and then returning to the former place, where they will spend the night and eat breakfast the next morning.

Wednesday at 8:02 the train will pull out for Salem, and from 10 until 1 o'clock they will be the guests of the citizens. They will reach this city in time for a half past one o'clock dinner, and at 7:00 will leave for Natural Bridge, where they will spend the night and the succeeding day in visiting this great curiosity of nature.

Luray will be the next place visited, and a night and day will be spent in exploring the wonders and beauties of the caverns.

The party will then leave for Washington where they will remain from Friday until Monday. The route, as outlined, may be slightly changed so as to allow the press people to attend the unveiling of the Lee monument at Richmond, but this has not yet been definitely decided upon. From Washington the party will go to Baltimore thence to Norfolk and thence back to Boston.

It is hardly necessary, we trust, to remind members of the commercial organizations and individuals aside from their affiliation with such bodies, that it should be a pleasure, as it is a duty, to make the necessary effort financially, and personally, to receive the delegation will make a more extended tour than the former one through Virginia.

"OLD JOHN'S TRIBUTE."

He Writes in a Sympathetic Strain of the Lee Monument.

PULASKI, VA., May 23rd, 1890.

The unveiling of the Lee monument at Richmond on the 29th of this month, would not be celebrated with ceremonies becoming the fame of our commander without the presence there of great numbers of the survivors of that army with which his name is so closely associated.

And from what I can learn, large numbers from every State in the South will be present. It will be a great feast to these old veterans to look upon the bronze statue of their beloved commander. And many will be there, who will recall his memorable words spoken to them at Appomattox Court House.

Some men, and try and make some bread for your families, and some God Almighty pros.

Twenty-five years have passed since those words were spoken and his soldiers furl their banner, but they are still fresh in their memories. Who will be able to tell the emotions that will spring from these old veterans' breasts when they cast their eyes upon the statue?

While thousands will be there, thousands of others will be absent. Since the war death has been a constant visitor to their ranks, while many of the survivors have been reduced to seek homes in distant States. Wounds, sickness, old age and poverty will keep many others away. I feel sure that every one who fought in the army of Northern Virginia would be proud to do honor once more to the man they loved more than tongue can express, and another great pleasure will be to meet and shake hands with old comrades for the first time since the war. I feel certain that many brave soldiers will be told over again. I want to say a word to these old soldiers: My comrades of the army of Northern Virginia, let us all make sacrifices to attend this unveiling. Don't be afraid that you will not be taken care of in Richmond. I know the people there too well. The "Old Confederates" will have more honor bestowed upon them than the volunteers and it is right in the center of the city, and in all probability this will be our last chance to honor our beloved Lee, and when we return to our homes we can tell our children what we heard and saw and inspire them to reverse the name of him whom their fathers loved.

"OLD JOHN."

Wants to Reach Washington.

Mr. Sands, counsel for the Norfolk and Western railroad, made an argument before the House District of Columbia committee yesterday in favor of giving that road an entrance into that city by a bridge of its own at the "Three Sisters," near Georgetown. No determination was reached, but the committee seemed favorably disposed.
